

ABSTRACT

5 A silicon controlled rectifier, which has a substrate and an overlying epitaxial layer that is formed on the substrate, is formed in the epitaxial layer to have a number of semiconductor regions with alternating dopant conductivity types where a number of the regions extend through the epitaxial layer to the substrate.

10